COLUMBIANS PLAY PLUCKY GAME AGAINST STURDY SONS OF OLD ELI.

JEROME ATTACKS WM. C. WHITNEY.

Amid the yells of the greatest crowd that has yet packed into the big hall of the Order of Acoms at Broadway and Leonard street Justice William Travers Jerome this noon made a savage attack on the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and William C. Whitney.

"If elected," cried Jerome, "I will not follow up exclusively the trails into the tenement houses. I'll follow the trail even if it runs right into the office of the Metropolitan Traction Company."

"I know well the owners of this vast corporation, and if I cared for politics I would not speak as I now do of this mighty octopus. Yet we see Mr. Shepard being ardently supported by William C. Whitney (a voice: 'He's not registered') and we all know the significance of that."

"I am not here to attack corporations," continued Justice Jerome, "but when a corporation approaches members of the Legislature to get through franchises that the citizens ought to be paid for, I shall raise my voice in protest."

"Of the citizens of New York do not think that when a man like Whitney comes out for Shepard it means something, it is time they awoke to the situation. Is it not a significant thing to see William C. Whitney supporting Edward M. Shepard?"

"Those who know Whitney say that usually a political fight with him is a case of fight dog, fight cat, until his personal interests are touched."

"Can we fail to see how a man who is the attorney and the counselor for

In Noonday Speech He Bitterly Arraigns Mr. Whitney and Metropolitan Street Railway—Answers Mr. Croker's Questions.

The Sugar Trust can be so close to William C. Whitney that he wants to support him for election as Mayor of this city."

No Quarrel with Whitney. "I have had no quarrel with Whitney. Corporations are good things if well and properly managed, but they are capable of great abuses when their vast resources are brought to bear on legislatures and courts. When you array your self against these mighty interests you are fighting many dangers, but if elected I promise I will follow every trail even if it leads into the Metropolitan Street Railway office."

"Ask any reputable member of the bar how Judges of the Supreme Court are elected. Ask any reputable member of the Bar, if they would not pick and choose, when transacting business bearing the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, between Judges of the Supreme Court. These words are God's truth."

"What I have said to you to-day I have not said lightly, because I know that in saying what I have about the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, I am attacking against myself the most dangerous, the most vindictive and the most powerful influence at work in this community."

Justice Jerome addressed his remarks to 3,000 men. The big audience was packed so closely together that it was almost impossible for the Justice to wedge his way through to the stage. When the crowd caught sight of him a wild roar went up. Hats were thrown to the ceiling. The cheering continued for nearly five minutes and the Chairman of the meeting could not make himself heard. And as the cheers died down a man with a deep base voice, more penetrating in its tones than a fog-horn set up a dismal groan that made the crowd break out again in cheers.

When Justice Jerome stepped to the front of the platform the cheers broke out anew.

Answers Croker's Questions. "I feel I must be brief," he began, "because we led a pretty strenuous life last night, and I don't want my voice made entirely silent before the close of the campaign."

"I have been asked questions by the Hon. Richard Croker, which I shall answer here to-day. His questions were: 'If elected, what chance will you make in the District-Attorney's office?' 'If you are really working in the interest of the public, why don't you suggest to your friend, Mr. Egan, that he wipe out the evils which you say exist?' 'First, I will say, if elected District-Attorney, I will put every Tammany man there out of office.' 'Second, I have suggested to my friend, Mr. Egan, to do certain things, and if the good work goes on, it will result in three-fourths of Mr. Croker's friends being put in prison. Egan has begun to do it and I will follow it up if I am elected. Philbin has tackled Scannell, and I guess he will finish the job all right. He has started in on Devery and the Supreme Court has now got the matter under advisement. 'If they give me a little time I'll land many more of them under the free care of the county.'"

"I SAW NO VICE," SAYS MR. SHEPARD.

Democratic Candidate Tells East Side Del egation He Witnessed No Violation of Order and Decency There.

"I have again and again walked through the east side without seeing a single violation of order and decency."

EDWARD M. SHEPARD. Delegations from three east side political organizations called on Edward M. Shepard at his Brooklyn headquarters, No. 172 Congress street, this morning, to assure him of the allegiance of the east side voters as a solid body.

The associations represented by Morris Cukor, the Chairman of the delegations, were: The Hungarian Democratic League, the Hungarian Political Union, of Greater New York, and the Downtown Democratic Association.

Mr. Cukor in his address to the Mayorally candidate said: "The east side of New York is solidly for you and will return an old-time Democratic majority. As a unit, the voters of the east side resent Mr. Jerome's attack on it when he said: 'It is no place for a pure woman to be seen below Fourteenth street.'"

"We Will Elect You." "We will vote for and elect you."

In reply Mr. Shepard said: "There is very much to reform and to make better, but I do not think that the best way to do it is to paint the picture perfectly and impossibly black. 'I condemn the public treatment of the entire east side as a place where good and honest and decent people cannot live.' 'The great masses of the plain people there, as elsewhere, believe in the highest standard of morality. I believe they require the same standard of public morality in their elected servants."

"I have again and again walked through the east side without seeing a single violation of order and decency."

George Foster Peabody, who was in attendance on Mr. Shepard, continued to speak when Mr. Shepard stopped. "Mr. Shepard and I," he said, "walked through the east side and around Chinatown last New Year's eve. We saw nothing to offend public decency; did not hear one obscene or objectionable remark, and I am quite sure did not come across five persons under the influence of liquor."

"Then, Mr. Peabody, the report of your Committee of Fifteen as to the conditions on the east side are at variance with the facts as you found them."

"Oh, the vice is there," replied Mr. Peabody, after a little hesitation. "but this was a festive occasion. New Year's eve. The great masses of the people had turned out, and the vicious, overwhelmed by their presence, had slunk away."

Rapid Transit Bill. When a published statement of the money paid to counsel by the Rapid Transit Commission was shown to Mr. Shepard, he said:

"The rate of compensation for either General Tracy's firm or my own firm was very materially less than the rate of compensation paid for like work by their or our other clients. I think all the members of the Board, including Seth Low, will agree that the rate was miserably not more than half of what would be charged for like work to corporate clients by law firms of the standing of Gen. Tracy's or my own."

"Do you really expect to make Mr. Under and Mr. Croker better in your efforts to reform the city government?"

"In my very feeble way I hope to make all the world better, and that will include those gentlemen. I should very much like to improve Mr. Cantor."

New Yorkers Surprise the New Haven 'Varsity, but Play Loosely and Weaken at Critical Moment—Game Replete with Brilliant Play.

FINAL SCORE:
YALE	10
COLUMBIA	5

(Special to The Evening World.)

YALE FIELD, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25.—Twenty-two sturdy young men, as physically fit as weeks of hard training could make them, battled on Yale Field this afternoon for football supremacy. Eleven of them represented Columbia University and the others Old Yale. All the way from New York came the wearers of the blue and white to do battle with the sons of old Eli, and they came brimful of hope of carrying off the honors of the day.

Coach Sanford, heading his football pupils, arrived in New Haven at noon. Expectancy was written on all their faces. The football world had doomed them to certain defeat. They could not see it in that light. Coach Sanford did the talking for his men.

Sanford Expected Great Game. "Now it is going to be a great game," was Sanford's comment to The Evening World representative. "Expect to win!"

The Line-Up:

Columbia	Positions	Yale
Jackson	L.E.	Gold
King	C.T.	Olcott

McCallan	R.G.	Glass
Truitt	R.T.	Hogan
Van Housen	R.E.	Swan
Morley	Q.B.	de Saules
Smith	F.B.	Philbin
Weeks	H.	Chadwick
Berlin	Umpire	Weymouth
Emery	Umpire	Weymouth
Referee	Whiting	Weymouth
Timekeeper	T. G. Hale

Well, now, I never coach a team for a beating, and maybe there will be a big surprise in store for my old college mates before this afternoon's work is over."

The game meant a great deal to the Columbians. If they could but repeat their victory of two years ago they feel that the renowned "big four" of the college football world might be changed to the "big five." They wanted to be included in that number and they came prepared to play the game of their lives. These same Columbians have always been a stumbling block to the New Haven team. A year ago old Eli's boys just carried off the game in the last half by wedging in a couple of touchdowns. The year before Columbia triumphed by a score of 5 to 0. That was the performance the New Yorkers wanted to repeat.

To the ordinary football enthusiast the game was lacking in championship flavor. Columbia was not considered dangerous, so little betting was done on the outcome. What wagers were made showed Yale a 1 to 5 favorite, and even that figure was uninviting to Columbia's followers. Yale men offered 5 to 1 that Columbia would not score, and on that proposition there were many takers. The wagers were all of small amounts. The meeting of the New York and

WILL LET MISS BARCLAY SEE STOKES ERE HE DIES.

Dr. John S. Billings, Jr., who is attending Edward S. Stokes, has assured Miss Rosamond Barclay, who says that she is Mr. Stokes's wife, that he will notify her in time to allow her to see him before he dies.

In consideration of this promise she will make an effort to establish her alleged right to the name of Stokes during the life of Mr. Stokes. Should she make no provision for her in his will she is not debarred from going to law for a portion of his estate.

Mr. Stokes had a relapse this morning. At 10 o'clock his condition, as reported to Dr. Billings, was that Mr. Stokes was sinking. Dr. Billings went at once to the McNutt mansion in St. Nicholas avenue, where Mr. Stokes has been ever since his removal from his own home in Seventy-ninth street.

During the night Mr. Stokes was delirious and called out for Miss Barclay, the young woman who says she is his wife and is barred from the McNutt home. No word of the relapse of Mr.

Alleged Wife Gets Assurance from Dr. Billings—Patient Has Had a Severe Relapse and the End May Come at Any Time.

Stokes was sent to her. It is only a matter of a short time when the end will come.

The woman is anxious to see Mr. Stokes, but realizes that any attempt she might make to force herself into his presence would be useless. It has been said by Mrs. McNutt, Mr. Stokes's sister, that if Rosamond Barclay can bring proof that she is Mrs. Stokes she will be allowed at her husband's bedside. Miss Barclay says she has the proof in the shape of a marriage certificate, but she has made no move to show it to the McNutts.

Friends of Miss Barclay say that she has told them that she could save the life of Mr. Stokes if she were allowed to go to him.

"I know how to take care of him," she is reported to have said. "I have taken care of him for years and have pulled him through attacks of illness as severe as this one. As long as they left him with me he showed improvement. As soon as they spirited him away and put him in the hands of persons who do not know his nature he declined. I understand his temperament and I know how to save his life. Without me he will die and he wants to see me."

There are no new developments in the attempt of Miss Barclay to claim the name of Stokes. Detectives remain on guard at the Seventy-ninth street residence, but the Barclay family has not yet been disturbed.

CHARGES NOT PROVED.

Postmaster Dismisses Tammany Complaints Against Letter-Carrier Friarly.

Post-Office Inspector Swift to-day held an open investigation in the case of William C. Friarly, a letter-carrier attached to Station A, in Greene street. Friarly was charged with detaining mail matter sent out by the Tammany Hall organization. The complaint was made by Samuel Maffei.

Friarly said that on his first round on Friday he had a large number of postal cards. Many of these he was unable to deliver because the persons to whom they were addressed were not at home when he called. He put these postal cards at the back of the letters he had to deliver, and when he reached the house No. 413 Spring street, he gave about a dozen postal cards addressed to occupants of these houses, to Charles Riley, the son of the janitor of the tenements. He said he received instructions from these tenants to deliver mail matter addressed to them to the janitor of the house if they were not in when he called to deliver the mail.

Samuel Maffei said that he was engaged in looking after the interests of Tammany Hall in Sullivan's district. He saw the boy Riley standing in the street with "a lot of postal cards" and he asked him to deliver them. He gave them to him to deliver, and Maffei said that he noticed all of these postal cards bore the black star of the Democratic party and he considered it right on his part to take the other cards from him. He did so, and went to Station A with them, where he made complaint.

Postmaster Van Cott said he did not see that the charge of destroying the mail brought against Friarly had been sustained.

PROMOTED FOR BRAVERY. Patrolman McGrath is Made a Roundman for Stopping a Runaway.

Patrolman J. McGrath, of the College Point Police Station, Borough of Queens, for bravery in stopping a runaway horse at Charles and Hudson streets Oct. 12, has been promoted to the rank of roundman.

NO PRIVATE POLICE WORK.

Murphy's New Order Prevents Jobs at Homes of Captains.

Commissioner Murphy told an Evening World reporter this noon that he had issued an order to police captains that hereafter they must keep their reserve force intact.

This, it is believed, grew out of the charge that Capt. Moynihan, of the West Twentieth Street Station, had employed one patrolman doing painting on one of his Harlem houses and another superintending the erection of a family vault in Calvary Cemetery. The Commissioner, however, would not admit this reason for the new order.

"Why did you issue it?" he was asked. "I have heard of that," said Mr. Murphy, "but it has never happened but once. I would not permit it for a minute."

The Commissioner announced that he had ordered the rank of a roundman to Patrolman John A. McGrath, of the Fifty-sixth Precinct, who on Oct. 12 stopped a runaway at Hudson and Charles streets, thereby saving several lives. McGrath was also given a medal and honorable mention.

WEATHER FORECAST. Forecast for the thirty-six hours ending at 8 P. M. Sunday for New York City and vicinity: Fair to-night and Sunday; warmer; fresh southwesterly winds.

BRIGANDS MAY HAVE GIVEN MISS STONE HER LIBERTY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—Information of the deliverance of Miss Stone from the band of brigands who have held her captive for several weeks is expected here hourly.

Consul Dickinson has sent news from the frontier, where he has been for forty-eight hours negotiating with the captors, and it all points to the speedy release of Miss Stone.

As a matter of fact, it is thought by some here that the missionary is already at liberty and possibly on her way to Sofia.

When Consul Dickinson started to meet the brigands he took with him $10,000 in cash, which was to be the first instalment of the ransom of $110,000 demanded.

It was then known that he was quite sure to get into immediate communication with the band, and to-day's news is not wholly a surprise.

Miss Stone and her companion were alive and well five days ago. Consequently the reported death of

News of Deliverance of the Missionary Expected Hourly in Constantinople—Consul Dickinson, with First Instalment of Ransom, Has Been in Communication with the Captors.

Mme. Tsilika is untrue. This news comes through a sure channel, which is kept secret because it is the one through which the negotiations with the brigands are conducted.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 25.—Reports received through various channels to-day place Miss Stone at Nevrokup, in the foothills of the mountains near Jeltpe.

This is in Turkish territory and is about twenty miles of rough country south of Melnik, the only town of any size near Salonica, the headquarters of Turkey in Asia.

The band of brigands has broken up because of the unusually early and heavy snowfall in the mountains, and it is said that Miss Stone is in charge of only three members told off to be her custodians.

LIKES NEWS OF MISS STONE. WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The State Department has not heard of the reported opening of communication between the missionary agents in Turkey and the brigands who kidnapped Miss Stone. In fact, there has been no word from Mr. Eddy or Consul-General Dickinson.

Nevertheless the Department is satisfied from the reports that have reached it that its agents are acting with energy combined with prudence. Especially does it credit Mr. Eddy with a display of zeal in the effort to relieve the condition of the unfortunate captive.

LAKE'S QUARREL DUE TO SERVANT.

NOTHING TO DO WITH ACTOR RATCLIFFE, WIFE SAYS.

Mrs. Lake, wife of James R. Lake, who after entertaining Actor E. J. Radcliffe at the Lake country seat, Great Neck, L. I., had him arrested for assault, denied to-day that she was in any way concerned in the quarrel between her husband and the actor. "I left home," explained Mrs. Lake at the Everett House this afternoon, "because of a misunderstanding over a servant. I had given my household an order which she refused to carry out. I thereupon discharged her, ordering her to leave the house that afternoon. She appealed to Mr. Lake, who did not understand the trouble, and he allowed her to remain."

"I suppose I acted hastily, but when she told me this I backed my girl and hastened home to the Everett House without seeing Mr. Lake. I left him a note explaining that I would return when the servant had been dismissed."

Mrs. Lake said she did not believe that Radcliffe had attacked her husband. "He is too much of a gentleman to do such a thing as that," she said.

WORTH WEIGHT IN DIAMONDS.

SEATON PLACES THIS ESTIMATE UPON MISS KRUM.

Miss Estelle Krum, the Ohio girl, who is trying to save her suitor, Charles Seaton, from prison, on a charge of attempted grand larceny, and who is languishing in Yorkville prison awaiting the decision of Magistrate Brann, paid an early visit to him this morning. Seaton has been under arrest since Monday, on a charge of having attempted to swindle Miss Susan C. Miller of $200, on a promise to give her a position as private secretary with the Western Ornamental Marble and Onyx Company.

Abraham Levy held that no crime had been committed. He and Deputy Attorney General Seaton, after a hearing, rendered his decision on Monday. Seaton in his cell this morning made the following statement for publication:

"I am innocent of this charge. I made no representation that I could not and did not intend to fulfill. My confinement in the Tombs was a lesson for life for me. Since, I have attended church and tried to be upright in every way. I had never been married. Miss Krum has told me that she has been misquoted in the newspapers. She should never have been included in my troubles. She is worth her weight in diamonds and pearls."

ICE TRUST HIT AGAIN IN COURT.

APPLICATION TO STOP ACTION AGAINST IT DENIED.

(Special to The Evening World.) ALBANY, Oct. 25.—Justice D. Cady Herick, of the Supreme Court, to-day denied the application of the American Ice Company and Charles W. Morse, its president, for writs of absolute prohibition to restrain Attorney-General Davies from continuing the proceedings against the American Ice Company to ascertain law.

It has violated the State Anti-Trust law. The motion for the writs was made by Attorney David Wilcox, and was opposed by Deputy Attorney-General Coman. The decision of Justice Herick will be appealed to the Appellate Division and to the Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals in its recent decision that the proceedings against the Ice Trust should be prosecuted did not pass upon the question involving the power of the referee to punish for contempt under the Anti-Trust law, and whether a witness is absolved from punishment under the Federal statutes if he testifies concerning his connection with a fraudulent combination.

The writs were applied for to secure a decision on that question by the Appellate courts of this State. The question is now before the United States Supreme Court, but the application to Justice Herick again brings the case into the New York State courts.

THIS BRIGHT BOY SAVED OWN LIFE.

WRAPPED HIMSELF IN RED CLOTHES TO PUT OUT FIRE.

Willie Kelleher, four years old, is bright beyond his years and also mischievous.

At noon to-day his mother left her flat on the fifth floor of No. 1297 Second avenue to go to the grocery. She returned to find the apartment filled with smoke. In the bedroom she found the counterpane smoldering. Wrapped up in it was Willie. The front of his little dress was burned off.

He was too badly injured to explain, but a number of burned matches in the kitchen told the story.

When the lad found his skirts in flames he jumped into bed and rolled himself in the bedclothes.

"Few older persons would have known such coolness and presence of mind," said Dr. Bivings, of Harlem Hospital, who took charge of the lad. "His brightness saved his life."

WOMAN GETS $2,250 PLACE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A woman has been appointed Superintendent of the Finance Division of the Post-Office Department and began drawing salary at the rate of $2,250 a year, the highest salary any woman employee in the classified service has ever received.

The fortunate woman is Miss Lillian A. Norton, credited to Texas. She succeeds to a vacancy caused by the death of Albert W. Bingham, who held the place thirty years. Her appointment is only temporary. The place has been held by her since the death of Bingham, and will take place at the beginning of the new year. Miss Norton was chief clerk at $1,600 a year.

HELD FOR TRIAL. James O. Schultze, deputy superintendent of elections, was arrested this morning on a warrant issued by Magistrate Mayo charged with perjury. Schultze lives at No. 64 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street.

His arrest is the outcome of his raid for illegal registrars at No. 105 Park avenue last Wednesday. He was held in $1,000 bond for trial.
